

ABSTRACT

A process for removing sulfur compounds and particulates from a flue gas comprising the steps of: injecting a mixture of chemical reagent and water into the flue gas and compelling the flue gas to interact with a cold solid surface. A process which utilizes the "fly-trap" effect.